Lynne Hagmeier, designer and owner of Kansas Troubles Quilters, has been creating and sharing her quilt designs since 1995. She learned to quilt in 1987 while working at a local quilt shop—partly as a way to maintain her sanity as she and her husband, Robert, raised their six children. The last two children graduated high school May of 2000 and that has allowed her love of quilting to blossom into a full time business. Lynne has a very distinctive style of traditional quilting with adding her own personal flair by embellishing her quilts with wool applique's and wool embroidery. Lynne's husband gets involved in the business. He is a history teacher and researches information for her quilts and the stories that inspire them. Lynne and Robert make quite a team. Good things just keep on coming with this gal. New fabric groups, new quilt kits, new quilter's journals... more.

INSPIRED

If you're planning a drive across Kansas, I recommend traveling in late summer. During the month of June, the wheat is waving gently in the early summer breeze creating a majestic golden wave along nearly every highway. This view is reminiscent of lyrics from patriotic songs (O Beautiful, for spacious skies, for amber waves of grain...) and is but an introduction to the stunning beauty and grace of the fields of sunflowers in August and September. It's not uncommon for cars to stop alongside the Kansas byways to take pictures of the rows of vibrant 6-foot blooms. I'm a homegrown Kansas girl that proudly welcomes ones arrival to our country home with an old windmill painted to resemble a giant sunflower at the end of our lane. We plant sunflowers along the hedgerows to cut for bouquets and dry the heads to create wreaths. Sunflowers come in all shapes and sizes and many different colors. I love them all. I especially love mixing them with other native plants and grasses for a unique, long-lasting arrangement. I hope you enjoy my medley of sunflower prints with nature-inspired motifs for a delightful fabric collection echoing from the Kansas prairie.

SUGGESTION FOR QUILTING

1. Mark the center of the circle with a pencil. Then, at the same time marking the "A" points, mark any pencil marks showing on the quilt. This can be easily removed with an "Art Gum" eraser.
2. Move the marker so that a "B" falls on an "A" point of the first circle, and so that the "A" connected with this "B", by a dotted line on the marker, falls on the same circle.
3. Outline the circle as before, again marking the "A" points. The same operation is repeated over the entire block, being careful not to place the "B" on an "A" point already crossed by two circles. All the circles interlock into one of the most popular and attractive quilting designs.
